

India : From my square lens – Part 1

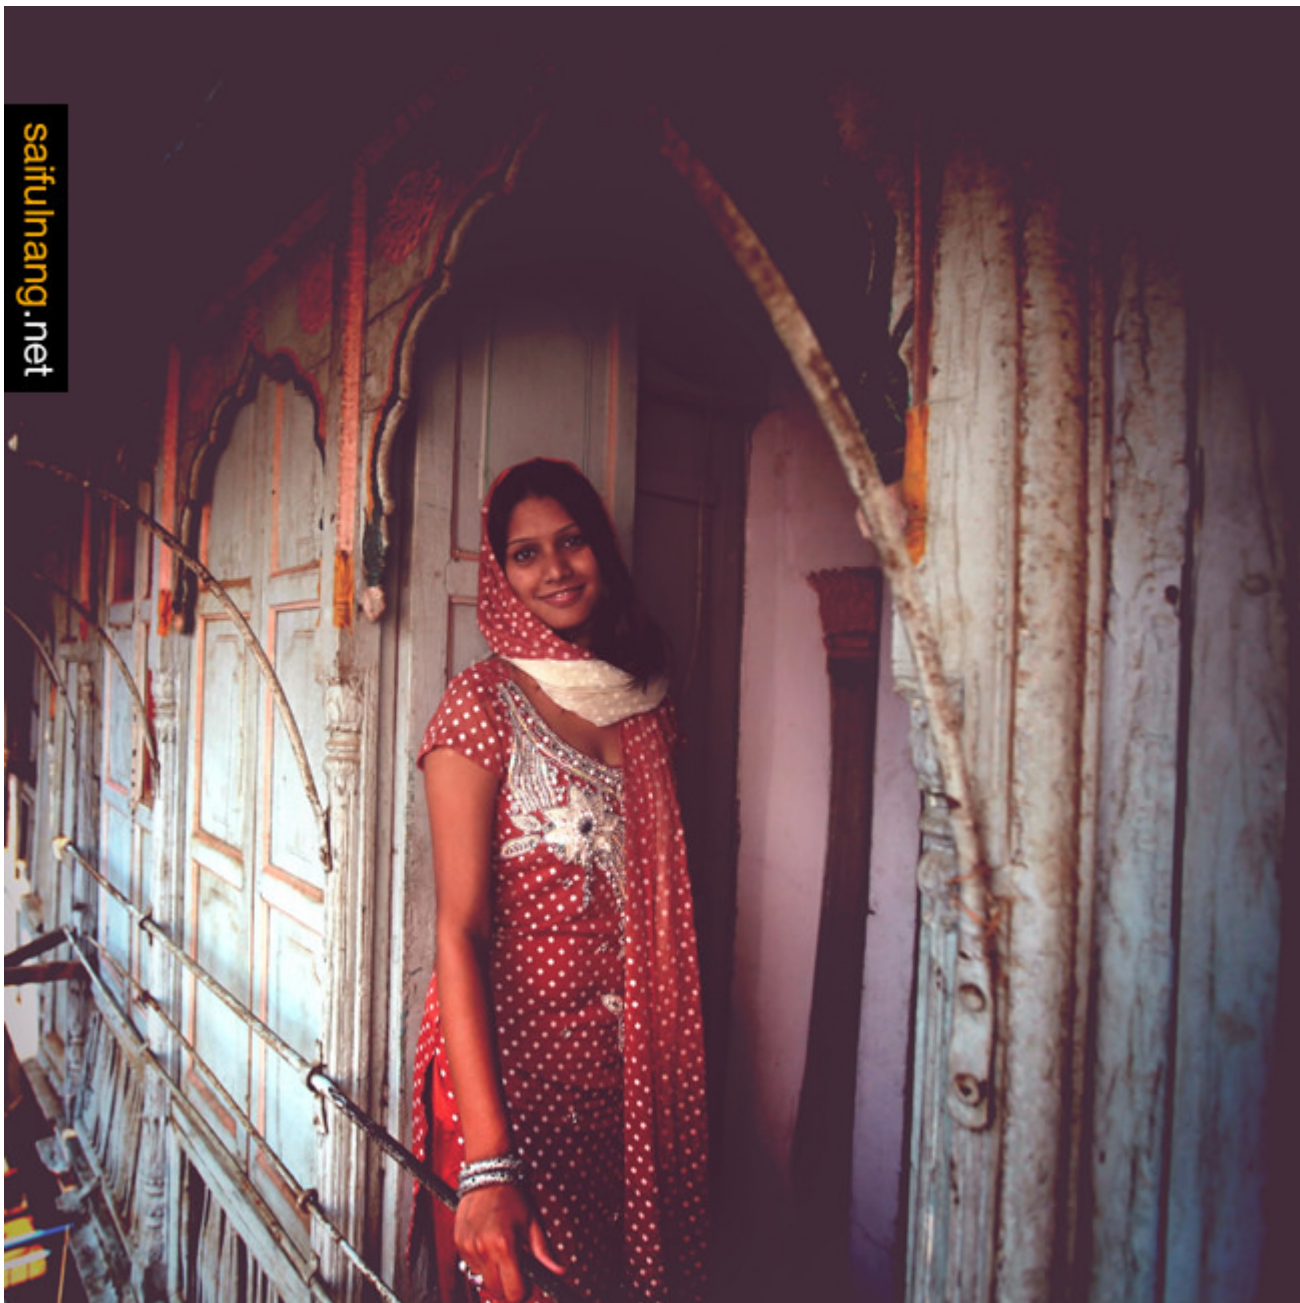

saifunang.net

saifulnang.net

India may not be so good if you want to bring your children along. But most of photographers in the world agreed Indian is one of the most photogenic countries in the world. Simply because we can still see most of the Indian stick into their tradition. They even have hundred of different tradition and languages that make them very special.

This time around, I managed to get to Varanasi. It was 14 hours by car and 12 hours by train. We went there by car as the train was full (except sleeper class). But we did really enjoy the time we were there. I enjoyed the boating at most. It's only 70 rupees (around RM7-8 for 1 hour). Let see the pictures...more to come.

SNDR0M BOOK

Thank god, SNDR0M book is now marked it 200 copies sold after few days it launched in my facebook. Which mean, there are still no publicity or promotion in media about this book. For those who want to buy this book, click HERE . It's a book of inspiration and motivation as well as hundreds of techniques and strategies I have done in order to make CandidSyndrome up and competitive not only in Malaysia but regionally.

Tq everybody

SAIFUL NANG, MPA(UK), WPJA, B.Sc Media
Certified Professional Photographer, WPPM CEO / Founder
Colours of Asia Sdn Bhd
(Brand owner of CandidSyndrome)
saifulnang@candidsyndrome.com